Earthling

Written by Amy Woodburn Lyrics by Amy Woodburn Sung by Lizzie Freeborn Produced and Arranged by Gareth Young, Cube Recording

But I promise now, as long as I stand There's fire in my blood, no sword in my hand And a piece of my soul stitched into this land Gonna fight for my home just as long as I can

I'm not exactly known for sticking power It's hard to burn so long so bright a fire Always moving on To another song Making something perfect takes too long

Girl you lift the lid so I can see the stars The cruel, the beautiful I know they're ours Closer to my home Staring at the sky Falling through its endlessness, boy you and I

But I promise now, as long as I stand There's fire in my blood, no sword in my hand And a piece of my soul stitched into this land Gonna fight for my home just as long as I can

You're always telling me I'm such as a dreamer I'd love to show you round, it's fun in here. But I am of the earth And earth is all I am Now I'm gonna have to be the best earthling I can.

But I promise now, as long as I stand There's fire in my blood, no sword in my hand And a piece of my soul stitched into this land Gonna fight for my home just as long as I can
